Description

Bronze Age is a dating sim about survival in the wilderness during harsh times where most of the year is devoted to hunting wild game and building shelters and buildings.

Bronze Age now features the brand-new official crowd control and captain-tracking system.

Make Your Own Beauty Blog - A(n) (beautiful) Blog Tag: hair If you've read my blogs before, you know that I write about a lot of things, and that not all of them are positive or uplifting. Sometimes, I talk about difficult situations in my life, and I'm not always happy about that. I still do it, because I don't want to be wishy-washy about anything, and I want to support and give out information and advice that can be helpful to other people. Today, I'm going to approach an issue that has been plaguing me since my acne-riddled days as a teen, getting what appears to be dandruff symptoms. It was probably around 6 or 7 years ago, that I would start developing extremely itchy scalp spots, and then I would go through all kinds of hiding techniques, with absolutely zero success. I would scratch and scratch, in the middle of the night or whenever I could, until it was painful and I was covered in second-degree burns. And still, I couldn't get rid of them. Then, in the past 5 or 6 years, I decided to go natural with my hair. However, I still had the same itchy scalp, and then immediately, I was able to scratch it again, but this time, it didn't feel as bad. So, I kept at it, because I felt that I would be able to rid myself of my itchy scalp soon, if it weren't for the ubiquitous dandruffy stuff that was in my hair at the time. But, it was still there after almost 6 years of just using dirty cotton balls and saltwater scrubs. So, I'm on top of things for the first time in a very long time, and I'm able to apply some of the tricks I've learned from reading and by learning from products that have worked for other people. I use this kind of "spa stuff" a lot around this time of year, and I guess it helps prevent me from getting the miserable itch or going through the patchy skin stage. I found out that my doctor prescribed me Zetaclear for the symptoms, which is a zinc-based detangling solution. And I also used the product I previously mentioned, to help combat the itchy scalp, which

Many, many monkeys love to jump on high rocks that are 100 feet above the ground. They do this every day, waiting for you to get up there to get eaten by them. You find the best climbers in the world, who also love jumping on the rocks. The best climbers are paid more, so you've got to climb to earn those high paying wages. There are like 10,000 monkeys around the place. You can jump on as many rocks as you want, but you only get 1 trophy per rock. So be careful not to get eaten while climbing! Or better yet, don't climb! There is no time limit, so you can climb as much as you want. This can be repeated 10 times for each monkey. Each time you climb, you unlock the next monkey's egg (there are 10 eggs). But to unlock all 10 eggs, you need to climb 10,000 times. Improve your climbing skills to unlock new achievements, each one unlocked when you earn that specific monkey's egg. I love this game it is so funny and very entertaining with a beginning to end storyline. Cons: The game is addicting but it can be frustrating because it often does not give you a clear success message if it achieved your goal. Florida's unprecedented boom sounds a warning Florida has been blindsided by more than $75 billion in privately-funded developments since 2011. That boom has room for more new homes in places like Miami and Boynton Beach. That massive boom in privately financed residential development just seems to go on and on in the sun-soaked state of Florida, where more than $75 billion worth of new homes have been delivered since 2011. The volume of these new residential projects dwarfs all but one other state, California. Just within Miami-Dade County—and down the coast in Broward—the surge in building has been prodigious. In the span of five years alone, it's created an additional 210,000 square feet of new residences, according to Miami-Dade's Office of Planning. The same torrent of newly built homes is washing over other sun-soaked cities, including the famous beach towns of Miami Beach, Coral Gables and Sunny Isles. This new development, as well as the jobs and economic activity it creates, is causing bigger concerns than just the checkbooks and investments of citizens and companies alike. From conservationists to politicians to more one-time experts on land use and zoning, people are finally turning a wary eye to the landslide of new housing in the sunshine state. Why this boom? Why now? Even though a long history of development has brought things like condos, commercial buildings and single-
