Data acquisition and diagnostic can be completed quickly and efficiently at very high accuracy. Multi-Diag VCI is a real time diagnosis tool which can detect information quickly. Conclusions are gathered by software or hardware. Multi-Diag VCI can create realistic virtual hardware to display real time data on computer screen. Whether in hardware or software, Multi-Diag VCI is capable of detecting many information which makes car diagnosis even more accurate. I bought a 2010 VW Polo keys from ebay. I used the keys provided on the ebay thread and there were no problems. But when I go into the tank to fill up, the car would start and run for 2 minutes and die. The previous problem had led me to looking at the DIY codes and I found a very similar problem. When I tried your software to read the DIY codes, it read four lines of codes that were different to the ones I had. I think the latest problem is a result of the earlier problem. I found that the DIY code for the 'I.' sensor was a 381, but on your version, it was a 384. I have tried downloading a new version of the software, but it's still giving me a similar problem. I have the correct code and this appears to be a software problem. Is there a new version out that I should be using? The previous experience with the DIY codes just complicated the problem as you can imagine. Solution: the mutil sild odi.exe having code A064605 during the setup. you can see this version number with reference to Actia multi diag, not the product description like 381 but A064605 is the relavant version. If you have used a setup before, you have noticed that this is read in step four. the relavant version of Actia MultiDiag for VW Polo is not 4 but 5, need to pay more attention to this version number when setting up a software 5ec8ef588b
